“ I first met James Hon through correspondence when he was in the service with a friend of mine. Then he and I became friends and during my college days. He worked in Detroit and during spring break one year, a college pal of mine and I went to visit her sister who also lived near Michigan and James took me into Canada one evening. My very first trip out of the country was with this nice young man. I have thought of him often over the years. Rest in peace dear friend.
