“ Every time I talked to her she raised my spirits. I always ended the conversation with a smile on my face and an image of her on that land, remote, but surrounded with love which she kept giving and getting. We were physically separated, so I am already accustomed to not being “with” her. But, going forward, I know I will be with her in spirit as strongly as ever. She will be a source of solace, a good example of grace in suffering, and a fresh smile will come to me each time I think of her. ”
